

WORKING TOWARD THE CLOUD

Legal Firms Are On Their Way To Cloud Computing

Does your work day end right at 5:00PM? Are you able to shut your desktop down and leave your work at the office? Legal professionals do not always have that luxury and cloud services provides this industry with the ability to work from anywhere, at anytime with the confidence that their intellectual property is being safeguarded by the experts.

Have you taken the time to assess your IT budget and verify your company is investing in the best IT strategy? Cloud services reduce heavy IT costs that may not be required. Moving from traditional premise-based solutions and embracing cloud services allows your company to budget for the future, without scaling back on necessary technology. Advance2000 provides your team access to the latest technology trends, without breaking your budgets. Give your legal professionals the ability to have the mobile office they desire and work efficiently, from anywhere.

As more and more law firms are adapting to rapidly changing technology, mobile technology is becoming a hot topic of discussion. Having access to their client files from an iPad while waiting for a deposition or consistently having access to their applications for tracking hours is on high demand. Legal professionals benefit from remote workstations in multiple ways and we have a variety avenues for legal firms to embrace when looking to the cloud. Going "all-in" with a cloud provider may not be on the horizon, yet moving different areas of the business to the cloud may provide the best route for them to take. There are a variety of advantages cloud services can provide that your company potentially is overlooking. From data storage to hosted phone systems, Advance2000 has multiple solutions legal firms are utilizing.

Let us work with you to determine the best approach to incorporating cloud computing into your business. Offices across every industry are becoming more and more mobile. Now is the time to learn how your legal office and team can benefit from Advance2000's cloud services.

EMPLOYEE SPOTLIGHT

As a Technical Support Specialist II on our Service Desk Engineering Team, Joe Chille has been assisting our customers for the last two years. Joe is one of the first contacts you have when calling into our Help Desk and is always willing to help, both our customers and employees. Outside of the office, traveling is something that Joe really enjoys doing. When he is not traveling, he is spending time with his two nephews. We appreciate all of your hard work, Joe. Thank you for all the support you provide to our internal teams in addition to our customers.
